

BeneCard PBF's clinical review program utilizes online claim adjudication edits to prevent claim payment until BeneCard PBF has assessed the patient's drug history and/or current diagnosis through communication with the member's physicians to ensure appropriate and safe utilization of the medication. Drugs requiring clinical review are associated with a diagnosis-based drug utilization protocol that is used to determine coverage. These protocols are based on clinical information, clinical trials, and industry standards, as well as pharmaceutical compendia such as Micromedex, Facts & Comparison, and AHFS proving for clinically appropriate and sound evidence-based medical standards. Rationale for requiring that a product undergo clinical review before adjudication relates to the following issues: safety, off-label use, product availability/rationing, and special request by the client. One or more of these characteristics could predispose a medication to clinical review status.
